Ancient mythology told this story: once there was a merchant who wished to go to the village, so he built a boat. He was a kindhearted man, so he gave a tiny fish to the new-born baby as he was going to the village. The new-born baby sat on the boat's back. Soon, the baby became thirsty and wanted some water. So the merchant took a small vessel filled with water and gave it to the baby. The baby turned on the water and got a mouthful of water. Now, a little fish is looking for a mouthful of water. The baby asks his Mom for the water vessel, which the Mom gave to the little fish. The little fish is now looking for the vessel, so the baby asks the merchant for it. The merchant won't give, so he asks the little fish to go and get it. On the way back to the boat, the baby was thirsty again, so he asked the merchant for a drink. So the merchant took a vessel filled with water and gave it to the baby. Now, the baby is looking for another vessel, which the Mom gave to the little fish. The fish is looking for the vessel, so the baby asks the merchant for it. The merchant won't give, so he asks the little fish to go and get it. On the way back to the boat, the baby was thirsty again, so he asked the merchant for a drink.
